“The goal is to provide inspiring information that moves people to action.” – Guy Kawasaki

Yep. That’s basically what an IR consultant does: provides inspiring information to investors and moves them to action.

Seriously though, an IR consultant is vital to the success of any business, especially a startup. It’s a bridge that connects investors and company executives. It’s someone who helps them communicate, who shows the company’s credibility, raises funds, and manages investor relations.

In return, he or she enjoys flexible working hours plus a highly paid and much respected job as an IR consultant.

So, how would you like to become one?

Join our free webinar to find out how you can become an IR consultant even without any experience in raising capital.

Here is what you will learn at the webinar:

- ✓ How to break into Investor Relations
- ✓ How IR consultants represent the company to investors and investors to the company
- ✓ What are the key skills that an IR consultant needs to do a great job and get a great paycheck
- ✓ How to attract funds through investor dinners and make affiliate cash
- ✓ How much an IR consultant can earn per year
